

INFLUENCE OF 17- β ESTRADIOL AND PROGESTERONE RECEPTORS IN SPONTANEOUS TUMOR LACTIC GLANDS OF DOGS

L. V. Pestovnikova

Depending on a few factors such as growth of tumorous, stage of disease, intensity of infiltrative component, condition of surrounding tissues, age and species features of animals, hormonal background of estradiol and progesterone, concomitant diseases, immune condition, ecology, care and keeping of an animal, and other factors, are planning methods of medical treatment animals, cancer diseased. Up to present day, combination treatment of mammary gland cancer takes up dominant position. Possibility of definition of 17- β estradiol and progesterone receptors in tumor helps forecast with a high degree of accuracy an effect of dogs hormonotherapy, diseased with a cancer of mammary gland.