

CAPITAL, FINANCIAL RESOURCES AND SOURCES OF ENTERPRISE FINANCING

E.F. Sisoeva

There are several approaches to determine financial resources and their independence upon the capital of enterprises, which are presented in modern economic literature. We find investigation of these approaches to be very important because any enterprise successful activity at the market economy conditions depends not only on the correct policy to manage the enterprise and capital flows but on substantial strategy to manage its financial resources and capital. Problems of formation and making use of financial resources have traditionally been and still are in the center of theory and practice of financial management. But articles and literature devoted to these problems do not usually focus on the difference between categories "financial resources", "capital", "sources of financing", they do not pay enough attention to financial resources transformation into capital. This article highlights the aspects of real economic sector enterprises financing