THE INSERT RIGHT IN
A HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVE
M.A. Egorova

The paper offers a historical explanation for the discourse functions of the present-day English insert Right. It is argued that this language unit is derived from the corresponding adjective that had undergone pragmaticalization, in the course of which right lost its original part-of-speech attributes and developed morphological, syntactic and conceptual characteristics of a new category.